Kenelle tarkoitettu

This training is designed for individuals looking to build a new career or gain a qualification in the tourism sector. If you're eager to work in dynamic, customer-focused tourism roles, this programme is an excellent pathway. A similar training programme is also available in Finnish.

During the training, you will learn to plan and deliver customer-oriented services that meet the needs of the tourism industry. The studies emphasize practical work situations, cooperation and responsible practices.

Applicants do not need to have an existing employment contract or prior work in the field, although these are considered an advantage during the application process. An applicant who has a permanent employment contract in a tourism-related workplace will be guided, when possible, to complete the qualification through an apprenticeship.

Toteutustapa

The training is carried out as flexibly as possible through on‑site and online studies, as well as workplace learning. Workplace learning is implemented in a work‑life‑oriented way in various companies within the field. Students demonstrate their skills in real tourism‑related work tasks through competence demonstrations. If some of the required competences in a study module cannot be assessed through demonstrations, the student's competence will be individually supplemented and verified by other means.

Aikataulu

The schedule for the on‑site days will be clarified after the training begins. The training is carried out as flexibly as possible through on‑site and online studies, as well as workplace learning.

The duration of the training is 8 months.

Valintaperusteet

Hyria's continuous application student selection process is divided into three assessment areas, regardless of the field: Motivation, Study Readiness, and Work-Life Readiness. The scoring criteria include information assessed directly from the application as well as elements evaluated through a separate aptitude test or interview. Motivation is assessed to understand why the applicant is seeking the training and to identify genuinely motivated students.

Study Readiness is evaluated to determine the applicant's ability to succeed in vocational education.

Work-Life Readiness is assessed to evaluate the applicant's suitability for the field and their general working-life skills.

Hyria's language of instruction is Finnish. Applicants must have language skills that meet the requirements of the field. If the applicant's native language is not Finnish, their language proficiency must be demonstrated through a language test or an equivalent certificate.
